HOOFLAND'S GERMAN BITTERS.

Prof. Wilson Brown, D. D., Editor of the Encyclopedia of Religious Knowledge, says:

"I have dispensed the Bitters, or recommended Patent Medicines, for many years, and, though differed in their ingredients and knew of no sufficient reasons why a man should not be benefited by what he believed to have a simple preparation, in the hope that he might relate to the benefit of others, I was more readily in regard to Hoofland's German Bitters, prepared by Dr. C. M. Jackson, of this city. I declined to register them for many years, because the Bitters were chiefly an alcoholic mixture, and I was frequently asked by friends to prescribe them, instead of Brandy, in cases of debility. The use of three bottles of the Bitters, at the beginning of the present year, was quite sufficient restoration to a degree of vigor which I had not felt for six months, during the period of regarding. I, therefore, and my friend for directing me to the use.

Surgical & Mechanical Dentist,

HAVING RECEIVED A NEW AND FULL OUTFIT of Instruments, I am hereby enabled to ensure to my patrons and the public generally that I am prepared to perform all operations belonging to the Dental Department in a manner not surpassed by any Dentist in the United States.

I also take this opportunity to thank the citizens of Portland and vicinity for their liberal patronage during a year's residence in this city, and hope, by doing my work not only in accordance with the latest and most approved principles of the art, but also in a style of workmanship not surpassed by any other Dentist in the country, to merit a continuance of the same.

ARTIFICIAL TEETH, in the newest and most improved styles, constructed on the following materials:

GOLD, PLATINA, SILVER, RUBBER, AMBER, or CELLULATE BASE,

at the option of the Patient.

The Extraction of Teeth by his method is new to another, as the instrument used penetrates the unpleasant gum, causing a state of insensibility thereto, but will be found to extract the tooth without the least pain.

All operations warranted to give satisfaction, or charge will be made.

Particular attention paid to the regulation of children's teeth.

Dental operations performed professionally solicited.

Ladies will be waited on at their residences if desired.

MONDAY MORNING, JULY [illegible], 1863

TRAVELLING AGENT

Mr [illegible] is the authorized agent for the Daily and Weekly Oregonian and will [illegible] to receive subscriptions, collect accounts, etc., in all [illegible] Washington Territory and Victoria, Vancouver's Island and British Columbia.

The Glorious News

The intelligence that received by telegraph on Saturday morning and fully confirmed by the papers on the steamer in the evening, gave our citizens unbounded satisfaction and joy and all gloomy fears [illegible] whether [illegible] it—it was [illegible] God to be true, but which it was [illegible] for three previous [illegible] days had tended to the likelihood. Such a [illegible] result [illegible] general confidence was in [illegible] and all [illegible] heartily congratulated each other that the gloom and darkness of [illegible] had disappeared, and the bright sunshine of success was again covering the land. The universal gladness increasing [illegible] for [illegible] the grand patriotic demonstration of [illegible], nothing equal to which was ever before known in this [illegible] [illegible] would not be otherwise [illegible] all justly felt that the capture of Lee's army—which he had so [illegible] weakened—would [illegible] and the desertion of the rebel [illegible] at Vicksburg were the two great and imminently desirable events of the war—the beginning of an end not now distant, and the front close at hand. We do not assume that a immense work yet remains to be done which will be accomplished only by the most patient, constant and persistent efforts at all the various and scattered points where the rebellion still has power but we believe that the Government the Army and the whole country will adopt the spirit of the brief but admirable address of Gen Meade to his troops

The enemy, baffled and defeated has withdrawn from the contest. Our task is not yet accomplished. The Commanding General looks to the Army for greater efforts to drive the enemy from the soil. We believe that such efforts will be made forthwith wherever the rebel [illegible] the three items our national integrity and that they will speedily be crowned with triumphant success.

The dispatch received last night is another bright page in the record of patriotic victories. Gen Price has been defeated, the previous glad tidings are confirmed and even made more favorable than when first reported, there is a strong probability that Lee's whole army will be made prisoners or cut to pieces, public confidence is abundantly restored, and the heart of the whole nation thrills with joy unspeakable. And full of glory, verily, and reverently we may say this is the day of the Most High—the God of our fathers, who giveth us the victory.

ARRIVAL OF THE SIERRA NEVADA.—The steamship Sierra Nevada Francis Conner commander arrived in Portland at 6 o'clock on Saturday evening. She left San Francisco on the evening of the 7th instant, and brings the largest cargo ever shipped to this port and a large number of passengers. By this arrival we have fuller details of the late battles, copious particulars of which will be found in another column.

Memoranda.—Steamer Sierra Nevada, Francis Conner commander left 8th inst. lat 40 17 N long 124 W July 9th At 7 P M passed Columbia river bar 12 P M July 10 Arrived at Astoria 3 A M July 11 and at Portland at 6 A M same day, with the following.

Passengers.—Mr Johnson lady and child Lansing Stout, lady infant and servant, Mrs George, Mrs Barnard, Miss Price, Mrs Keller Mrs Emerick Mrs A Shaw 4, Woodward, Mrs Barber, Mrs Huggoth, Mrs Batchelder, Capt Ridgeway, Capt McFadden, Messrs Moody Buckley Ferguson Eyre, Nickel Foster Hinton, Williamson Schultz, Flint W H Mansfield, Munn A Thomas, Kelly Neally Brentwig Wm Sope Greenley, Clark, Lynch Robinson French, Haines Cannon Beers Thurlow Dettart Bohm Hillock Hall, Dang by Hook Corbett, J Herron (Wells Fargo & Co's messenger), and 56 in steerage.

Freight.—223 tons to various consignees.

WILLAMETTE UNIVERSITY.—We are requested to state that the examination and graduating exercises of this institution will take place this week at Salem. Six young ladies and the same number of gentlemen have completed the prescribed course of study. The exhibition exercises of the graduating class will take place on Thursday afternoon, and in the evening of that day an address will be delivered by the Methodist Church, by Mr H Brook of this city.

PROTECTION BY THE FRONTIER.—The steamship Sierra Nevada on her passage up, landed at the mouth of the Columbia Captain Elliott U S A with thirty men and twenty five tons of freight. It is the intention of Captain Elliott to erect creating works and plant cannon at Cape Disappointment for the protection of the people of Oregon, and a [illegible] appropriation having been made by the government for that purpose.

EARLY SESSION OF CONGRESS.—It is said that the sudden departure of Mr Conness for Washington was occasioned by the receipt of a [illegible] telegraphic dispatch from the President informing him that an extra session of Congress was to be called. The cloudy look of the foreign horizon together with the feeling [illegible] against the Conscription Act may have induced the President to decide upon calling [illegible] session at an early day.

It is said that before the steamer sailed from San Francisco that Legal Tenders were selling at 72 cents.

LATEST FROM THE EAST.

Dates to July 7th.

Particulars of the Great Battle.

Rebels in Full Retreat, leaving 50,000 Killed, Wounded and Prisoners.

Rebel Gen. Kemper and Johnson killed and Gen. Pindet wounded.

Federal Gen. Farnsworth killed, and Gen. Butterfield wounded.

Vicksburg Taken.

Price and Marmaduke Defeated

The [illegible] steamer Union from Wilmington N Carolina, with 1,000 bales cotton, was captured 20 miles east of that port by the gunboat Santiago de Cuba.

Bragg's army fled from Tullahoma June 30th in the night in great haste leaving strong fortifications a small quantity of stores and three [illegible] guns in our possession.

The Chattanooga Rebel has Richmond dispatches of the 29th June that three regiments of cavalry and 24 howitzers which left Tunstall Station last evening, appeared at Hanover Courthouse, and fired into a train on the Central railroad. The raiders had reached South Anna bridge where they were resisted by the guard and a fight is progressing. The proximity of the Yankees to Richmond occasions no alarm in official circles. The Yankees killed six and wounded thirteen and captured Gen W H F Lee. Later information, deemed reliable, has been received at the War Department (rebel) that a large force of Yankees estimated at 20,000 under Generals Dix and Kenly are moving on the Peninsula.

This news is confirmed by official dispatches stating that a portion of our cavalry under Kilpatrick had a fight on the 29th with the enemy's cavalry at Hanover Courthouse capturing a battle flag a lieutenant colonel, a captain and 50 privates. From 15 to 20 of the enemy were killed.

WASHINGTON, July 4—10 A M.—The President has issued a proclamation which announces to the country that the news from the Army of the Potomac to 10 P M of the 3d, is such as to cover the army with the highest honor, and promises great success to the cause of the Union and to claim the confidence of all for the unanimous gallant men who battled so. For this he especially desires on this day that He whose will, not ours, should ever be done, be everywhere reverenced with the profoundest gratitude.

CAIRO, July 4—Dates from Memphis the 2d have been received, and state that a force of rebel cavalry, estimated at 5,000 strong, have for a couple weeks past, been scouring the country back of and between Milliken's Bend Lake Providence and Goodrich's Landing. On Monday morning they made a descent on the plantations in that region, abandoned by owners and being worked by loyal men, and destroyed everything that could be destroyed, killed quite a number of the negroes employed in tilling the ground, and drove the remainder, about 1000, into the interior as captives. The loss in property is large, as the plantations were well supplied with everything necessary for carrying on the work. A large number of buildings were burned, and three plantations which had been let by the Government were visited by especial vengeance. At Lake Providence we had a garrison consisting of three regiments and 200 or 300 negro troops under Gen Reed, in all less than 1,000 strong. This force was attacked in the forenoon by a portion of the rebels, a majority of whom were cavalry and after considerable fighting were compelled to retire before superior numbers to some cotton breastworks erected near the line of the river. The rebels, after a few more volleys of musketry retired, it was supposed for the day, but soon returned with a number of pieces of artillery which they had concealed in the woods. With these they opened on the breastworks at long range, and, after a few shots advanced, and would doubtless have soon been at close quarters had not a couple of iron clad gunboats arrived from above. The levee being low the gunboat fired full sweeps, and by a few well directed volleys sent the rebels in hot haste to the woods. Our loss was about 40 or 50 rebel loss not known. The guerrillas on the river are getting bolder and increasing in numbers. Boats are fired on almost daily.

Accounts from New Orleans state that the rebels now occupy the whole Lafourche country, and communication between New Orleans and Berwicks Bay has been destroyed.

PHILADELPHIA, July 1—A semi-official dispatch from the Army of the Potomac says that a great and decisive battle was fought today. The enemy was repulsed with terrific loss.

At daylight Lee's right wing batteries opened on our left. Soon after those on the center followed. After a half hour's cannonading, which did little damage, their fire slacked, and only an occasional shot was exchanged. Shortly after the enemy composed wholly of infantry, made an attack on our right, so that our skirmishers were driven back from their outer entrenchments, but by the aid of the batteries in our rear and by heavy, we gained the first position, capturing a considerable number of prisoners. Several hours silence followed the repulse.

At one o'clock the enemy hurled shells as a signal for the greatest artillery fight ever witnessed. Before a moment elapsed 80 guns opened on us. Our batteries returned the fire, under cover of this Lee advanced and made several desperate attempts to carry our line by assault, but each attack was repulsed with terrible loss. Our artillery mowed them down with grape, canister and shot, while the infantry reserve charged them which added greatly to their destruction.

They were completely surprised and hundreds threw down their arms and asked quarter. Nearly an entire brigade surrendered. Longstreet was mortally wounded and captured. It is reported that he died.

One hour afterward about half past four in the afternoon, the enemy's artillery ceased firing. The last shots were fire behind their original position, and the infantry column had withdrawn to cover. We took upward of ten thousand prisoners. The enemy captured but few of our men.

Prisoners report A P Hill killed in the field, and that their officers suffered much more than in any previous engagement.

The house of Lords by Gen Meade was passed by several shots.

WASHINGTON, July 5—Gen French has captured a portion [illegible] from the enemy at Williamsport Md. The recent gains have swollen the Potomac [illegible] unfordable to an important fact, in view of the present military operations.

Gen Sickles arrived here today. His left leg has been amputated but it is thought that he will recover.

The reports concerning the capture and death of Longstreet and A P Hill are confirming.

CINCINNATI, July 6—Gen Burnside has received the following.

WASHINGTON, July 4—After three days sanguinary fighting at Gettysburg General Meade Lee and Gen Longstreet is now in full retreat. Signed HALLECK.

[illegible] Secretary of War.

WASHINGTON, July 4—The following, the latest official intelligence.

HEADQUARTERS ARMY OF THE POTOMAC, July 4—Gen Kilpatrick [illegible] the enemy retreating under cover of night. Heavy rain in direction of Fairfax and Chantilly via Old Church pursuit. Our wounded and those of the enemy are in my hands. I cannot give [illegible] Our capture in prisoners and small arms are large. [illegible] 500 with [illegible] will be [illegible] from my corps.

GEO G MEADE.

HARRISBURG, July 6—Nothing is known at the capital position of Lee. He is probably trying to [illegible] both [illegible].

It is supposed he [illegible] with the destruction of the pontoon [illegible]. Meagher's [illegible] from the center and left [illegible] of Gettysburg.

NEW YORK, July 6—Gold this morning 38.

CINCINNATI, July 6—Special dispatch received late last night, assert that Lee's retreat is completely cut off and that Meade captured 18,000 prisoners and 18 pieces of artillery and that Lee asked a suspension of hostilities for the purpose of burying the dead. Meade would not listen to it, but [illegible] with less than one hundred thousand surrender. I send this only as report not vouching for its correctness.

NEW YORK, July 6—The Time says the contents of Davis' dispatches, which were captured, urge for Lee to withdraw from Pennsylvania instantly assuming as ruinous the position was too hazardous, and the condition of Richmond too notoriously [illegible] warrant his remaining longer. Davis also refuses Lee's request to allow Beauregard to reinforce him and orders Lee south of the Potomac forthwith.

The Times Gettysburg dispatch confirms the report that Meade [illegible] annihilated Lee's army. Lee left 10,000 killed and wounded on the ground.

Hancock's corps which defended the center, was thanked by Meade in the name of the army and country.

A dispatch from the Herald says Gen Couch has received a dispatch from Hanover saying that 1,000 rebels and 100 union men were taken.

NEW YORK, July 6—Rebel Generals Kemper and Johnson were killed. Hancock is wounded.

Federal General Farnsworth was killed and Gen Butterfield wounded.

There is no truth in the report of Hill's capture or Longstreet's death.

Gen Meade has issued a congratulatory address to the army, saying "The enemy must and defiance has withdrawn from the contest. Our task is not yet accomplished. The Commanding General looks to the army for greater efforts to drive the enemy from our soil.

CHICAGO, July 7—It is officially announced that Vicksburg surrendered unconditionally on the 4th. No particulars yet.

The World this morning says we never saw such fighting. No estimation can be formed of our loss during the day. The enemy fought with the greatest desperation.

Prisoners say the massacre in their ranks was terrible beyond a parallel. Some of our guns were masked and did not open fire until the enemy were within canister range.

Our lines now extend for [illegible] miles [illegible] and Gettysburg our batteries facing the enemy from the south. We occupy the ridge above commanding the Chambersburg pike, and have cut off all lines of retreat.

A Florida brigade belonging to Longstreet marched into our lines last night and gave themselves up.

A bearer of dispatches from Davis was captured with dispatches ordering Lee to return immediately to Richmond.

BALTIMORE, July 5—A person who arrived here this morning from the field at Gettysburg, having left there yesterday afternoon, says the enemy was then believed to be retreating on the Chambersburg turnpike and the adjacent roads, having left one strong corps posted in a defensive position half a mile or more beyond Gettysburg presenting a heavy battle line to cover our pursuit and protect their retreating columns. The position of theirs is so strong that it gave opportunities for an enfilading artillery fire on the attacking columns, that an attack on the front seemed hardly advisable and up to Saturday noon no attack had been made. It is not impossible, however, that the flank of this line could be turned. The columns of the enemy's army can be distinctly seen retreating. Their wagon trains also are being hurried off as fast as possible.

CHICAGO, July 6—A dispatch from Tullahoma, dated the 4th, says McCook's corps occupied Winchester to day, the rebels extending to the foot of the mountains. Thomas's corps occupy Decherd, his advance being up to Cowan at the opening of the tunnel. The enemy's flight from Tullahoma was rapid—They destroyed all the bridges on Elk river thus delaying Federal pursuit. Several corps pressed ahead, however, crossing on pontoons last night. Stanley's cavalry effected a cross ing during the night, and are now crowding the enemy up the mountain road. Bragg's army is terribly demoralized, deserters coming in by scores, who say that the mountains are full of men afraid to show themselves, not knowing what may befal them, yet resolved to fight no more.

New Orleans letters dated June 26th say that Brashear City was captured by the rebels on that day with all the troops, artillery, &c. Our loss is 1000 men, including a large [illegible] of convalescents, and 18 to 20 guns of heavy calibre. Our outposts had fallen back to Butler's station, 20 miles from New Orleans. The correspondent says that as far as New Orleans city was concerned it was [illegible]. The guns of the fleet command the city, and Gen Lee very [illegible] disposed his command so that it can effectually defend every part.

From Port Hudson there is nothing of importance. The bombardment continues. Another assault was expected on the 27th ult of June.

INDIANAPOLIS, July 6—Dispatches have been received at the Executive office from Gen Boyle of Louisville calling for all troops immediately that Indiana can spare. He says reports appear that Morgan, at the head of 3,000 cavalry had crossed the Cumberland river on the 2d of July and will attempt to strike the Nashville and Louisville Railroad somewhere in Kentucky and then march on Louisville. Great consternation is said to exist in the latter city. All able bodied men are preparing for defense. Two regiments and one battery were sent from here and other troops are to follow soon.

MEMPHIS July 3—A letter written by an officer of Gen Quinby's command says that they number more than at any preceding date. A portion of his army occupies Bear Creek which is considered a point of [illegible]. The latter closes by stating that our forces will be able to drive [illegible] from that point and [illegible]. Skirmishes between his and our forces were of daily occurrence. Johnston is captured.

About 200 [illegible] during the last [illegible] days.

NEW YORK, July 7—A Harrisburg dispatch to the Herald dated July 6th says that 20,000 rebels and 100 cannon were taken and that Gen Pleasanton captured the main pass near Chambersburg, cutting off the retreat of the enemy. It is reported that a rebel column on the Virginia side of the Potomac was unable to [illegible] on account of the high stage of the water.

Parole prisoners say that the rebel [illegible] numbered 80000 of our troops.

GETTYSBURG, July 5—There is reported [illegible] with the Pomeroy. The rebel pontoon bridge at Downingtown has been [illegible] by our cavalry. Our cavalry has gone to Wilmington to destroy bridges there. Other [illegible] are pontoons are [illegible] to cross the [illegible] passage of the Potomac. Our army is in motion. It is feared that Lee's side and rear [illegible] Williamsport in time to rescue [illegible] vessels [illegible] about 2,000 [illegible] generals.

CHICAGO, July 6—The following is condensed from the account of the battle of Gettysburg, published on Saturday's New York Herald.

The battle of Thursday July 2 [illegible] all day. Meade's [illegible] right hung [illegible] Cemetery on the left which [illegible] pointed [illegible] and 3 o'clock [illegible] Some [illegible] were [illegible] progress behind this line and to develop those [illegible] was ordered to advance with [illegible] Thus [illegible] Immediately [illegible] from [illegible] in battery on the open field the [illegible] went forward in line of battle. Then the [illegible] artillery so long silent became [illegible] pieces in the field. In turn [illegible] Cemetery Hill opened on those of the enemy in the field. Other batteries of the enemy nearer our centre opened on those on the [illegible] Hill and soon went around [illegible] guns on the extreme right [illegible] of the hill engaged the enemy's batteries two miles across the country on the right. THE WAR EXCITEMENT — GRAND TORCHLIGHT PROCESSION — The uncertain but encouraging dispatches received in the city during the past few days created intense excitement in the public mind, and telegraphic dispatches and extras were eagerly sought for to confirm the reports of the great battles fought in Pennsylvania, and the glorious victory achieved by the gallant Meade over the grand invading army of the rebels led by their best generals, and eager for the plunder of our peaceful cities and homes. The accounts are still somewhat irregular but that we have achieved a great and important victory, and captured immense numbers of prisoners and guns, there is not the least reason to doubt. On Saturday last immediately on the receipt of the telegram confirming the previous dispatches, together with the announcement of the surrender of Vicksburg, our citizens determined to celebrate the event by the formation of a grand torchlight procession. During the day excited and joyful groups congregated in the streets discussing, in extravagant tones the good news from the armies of the Potomac and the North-west. The saloons were crowded with perspiring and thirsty patriots, and many and strong were the bumpers drained to the success of our gallant armies and the preservation and prosperity of our Union. Sundry martial spirits proceeded to the steamship landing, and having successfully assaulted and captured an ancient specimen of artillery added its loud tones to the general jubilee. At the approach of darkness many of our citizens illuminated their residences and places of business, and the dancing of lights ringing of bells, and jostling of noisy crowds, imparted to our streets a bustling liveliness and brilliancy to which they have long been strangers.

About nine o'clock the procession formed, near the corner of Stark and Second streets, and, headed by the Mechanics' band and the flag of our Union, the enthusiastic torch bearers marched merrily on their way. After parading the principal streets, the procession halted in front of the Dennison House, and after the performance of a patriotic air by the band, the crowd called lustily for Mr. Holbrook, who, on coming forward, was received with loud and continued cheering. In the course of his short, but eloquent address Mr. H. eulogized the patriotism that had prompted this popular demonstration, congratulated them on the decisive victory achieved by our arms, and concluded by expressing the hope that the present was but the precursor of a series of victories that would eventuate in the restoration of peace and union to our now distracted country. At the close of his address Mr. H. was loudly cheered.

Vociferous calls were now made for Governor Gibbs. After the cheering had subsided the governor said that all objects should give place to the interests of the Union, that party and sectional interests should be laid aside, and that the great principle of the Union should be upheld regardless of all consequences. He maintained that we were worthy the liberties the pilgrim fathers had bequeathed to us; that we would sustain them regardless of the consequences, and that future ages would bless and revere our determination. At the conclusion of his speech the governor was loudly cheered.

Judge Shattuck and Hon. J. H. Mitchell were called out, and made stirring and patriotic speeches. The latter gentleman said all the waters of the Nile could never wash out the guilt of treason in this great hour of our peril. He remarked that this was our real Fourth of July—a day that we should remember as a day of received victory, a day of confusion for all Copperheads, and a day of rejoicing for all loyal citizens.

At the conclusion the band played several patriotic airs, and after parading a short time longer, the procession broke up giving three ringing cheers for the Union.

It is a long time since we have witnessed such sincere and heartfelt demonstrations of joy; and though 'twas darkly insinuated that we returned to our home that night with a step less steady than of yore, yet were we greeted with loved lips that smiled sweeter and eyes that shone brighter for the glad tidings the joyful day had brought us. Oh! glorious, indeed, and just as the cause of the heroes, whose success brings such joy to our people, such happiness to our homes.

THE DEMONSTRATION TO-NIGHT — We understand that our citizens have decided upon organizing a more regular and imposing display than that which took place on Saturday. It is intended to have a monster torch light procession, composed of the fire companies and citizens. Everybody is invited to join in this patriotic demonstration, bringing with them a torch or other illuminated apparatus and swell the ranks of the procession. Let all our citizens earnestly assist to render this occasion worthy the event we celebrate. We are informed that a piece of artillery will be forwarded from Vancouver and it will probably be accompanied by a detachment of cavalry. The originators of this patriotic movement will spare no effort to render the most imposing procession ever seen in Portland.

LOST — During the torchlight procession on Saturday by one of our friends, lost his memorandum book, containing a theater ticket and a variety of confused memoranda, of no value to anyone but the owner. The finder will confer a great obligation by leaving the same at the Oregonian office.

The Garnet Ring.

I sent up a line to the Judge, in which I offered to defend the prisoner. He announced this fact. I took a seat behind her, and the trial went on. The interview with Allen and the note to the Judge had prevented me from hearing much of Mary Murray's testimony, but the prisoner seemed to have lost nothing of it. She questioned her closely as to their personal relations, and from the answers she drew out it was evident that Selina's pretty face had excited considerable admiration in a young man who boarded at Mrs. Wilson's and whom Mary Murray chose to consider her beau; that Mary had shown all will toward Selina on making the discovery, and made some slanderous remarks concerning her, and had even uttered a few threats for her warning.

I permitted the prisoner to elicit these facts without interruption, and I must acknowledge she did it with a tact which surprised me, and which I could only ascribe to strong woman will quickened and urged on by the extremity of her circumstances. Mary Murray was leaving when I detained her for further examination.

'Have you any employment?' I enquired. She answered in the affirmative.

'What is it?'

Cap-making.

'Who is your employer?'

This she told.

'Do you work at the shop or at your own lodgings?'

Sometimes at the shop and sometimes at my lodgings.

'Where have you worked during the last week?'

'At my lodgings.'

'What is the work upon which you have been employed?'

'Caps.'

'Yes; but what kind of caps?'

'Plush.'

'What color?'

'Mostly brown.'

'Was that bit of brown plush now hanging to your shawl fringe trimmed from the caps?'

The witness did not answer, but impudently catching up the end of the shawl, shook off the shred.

I turned to the Judge. 'Will your Honor direct that shred to be secured? I shall have something to do with it.'

It was picked up and handed to the Clerk.

Mary Murray was still on the stand. I resumed my questions to her. 'You heard in the same House with Selina White?'

'Yes.'

'Is your room near her's?'

'No; hers is in the attic, and mine is a chamber over a back tea-room.'

'Was Selina ever in your room?'

I had learned one or two facts from Selina before I put the last question.

'No, she never was; I never had anything to do with her.'

'Were you ever in Selina's room?'

'Not while she had it, except the day the policeman searched it.'

'Did you then handle the clothes found in the carpet bag?'

'No, the policeman allowed no one to touch them.'

'When did you last see Mrs Wilson wear the delaine dress that has been shown here?'

'I can't tell exactly; not for some months.'

'Has it been in your room among the plush caps to your knowledge?'

'No sir.'

Mary Murray was dismissed.

I now called Miles Allen. At mention of this name, the little girl at my side started forward as if she had received an electric shock, then sank back and held her hands tightly together, as if struggling with some powerful feeling. She looked steadily at the witness, as she had done at those who preceded him, but her color kept coming and going, and she was excited and anxious. Miles Allen answered to his name and employment, he was a carpenter; from New Jersey; had been here about six months.

'Do you know the prisoner?' I asked.

The girl's eyes were full of tears, but there was a look of hope, almost of triumph, on her face, as he bluntly answered, 'Yes, sir, I do.'

'Where did you know her?'

'Where we both came from—in New Jersey.'

'How long have you known her?'

'Ever since she was born. And I know her too well to believe myself, or let anybody else believe she's a thief.'

'Never mind your opinion of her character now,' said the Judge. 'Do you know anything about the present case?'

'I know as much as this—that there's the same fuzz on the clothes they say Selina stole as was hanging on that gay girl's shawl.'

'Do you know the witness, Mary Murray?' I asked.

'No; I hope not.'

'Do you know the ring she wore on her finger this morning?'

'Yes, sir,' with an emphasis was the answer.

'What do you know about it?'

'I owned the ring once myself, and Selina White owes it now, for I gave it to her, a dishe ain't the girl to give it away.'

'How did you recognize it?'

'Because I did. I'd know it anywhere as soon as I'd set my eyes on't; but if you're a mind to, I'd tell you how anybody may know that it don't belong to the girl that's got it. Inside on't you'll find my name, Miles Allen, pretty plain, and a little some thing else, besides, p'raps.'

'Have you anything further to tell with regard to this case?'

'Only that the gay girl proved plain that she never know'd or loved Selina enough to make her give her the ring, and so I'd like to ask how'd she get it? and then whose the thief after all?'

'These points will be settled at the proper time,' said the Judge. At my request he ordered Mary Murray to be recalled. She appeared quite red with anger. I examined her as to where she obtained the garnet ring, and as I anticipated received only unsatisfactory and contradictory answers. The Judge requested her to remove it from her finger. She refused. An officer in attendance soon relieved her of the ornament, which he handed up to the bench. The Judge looked at it carefully, and then read from the inside, 'Miles Allen. To the girl I love best.'
